A photograph of a sea slug, possibly a nudibranch, resting on a wet, textured rock surface. The rock is covered in various types of seaweed and marine life, creating a complex, organic pattern of greens, browns, and greys. The sea slug is positioned in the lower right quadrant of the image, showing its body and legs. A teal circular overlay is in the top right corner, and a teal rectangular overlay is in the bottom left corner, both containing white text.
